

UCView Digital Signage for the Government

UCView's digital signage is perfect for installing within government offices where effective public interaction must be adaptable and fiscally responsible.

Digital signage increases awareness and efficiency, provides information, and inspires action for civil causes, with minimal cost and maintenance outlays.

Government institutions realize the power and benefits of using digital signage products. Governments worldwide use digital signage for meetings, events, employee messaging, public information, emergency alerts, and even training.

Improve Communication

Digital signage technology can help government agencies and non-government organizations (NGOs) effectively and efficiently improve communication with citizens in their facilities. Digital signage installations are already showing clear results, such as events schedules in libraries and museums, or promoting government-sponsored events.

Bulletins and Advisories

Public displays can deliver new messages, services, opportunities, bulletins, and advisories - in one language or many.

Digital signage presents a digital signage "bulletin board" in local libraries to promote events and announce new materials and service additions.

Allow for Visitors to Use Outside During Off Hours

Place a small screen outside of an information booth to provide information after-hours and reduce staff costs.

Inform Citizens

Educate, entertain and inform citizens waiting in long lines at busy locations such as the DMV and Social Security Administration offices, local courthouses, and public transit stands.

Dynamic Directory

Post a dynamic directory next to an elevator or foyer, changing content as needed for various times and conditions during the day. Provide directions to various areas of large installations or greet a group for specific events.

Messages

Deliver inspirational messages, holiday notices, news, and weather as well as event information to public service employees and administrators.

Save Money

Save money on costly print media changes with digital signage that can be updated or altered with a few mouse clicks. Digital signage provides ample amount of options for you to save money.

Emergency Alerts

Broadcast emergency escape plans for each area of your facility. Display directions to safe exits, places to avoid and stream verbal instructions. Carefully plan campaigns, set them up in advance and implement them with a mouse click.

Employee Training

Digital signage can be used to effectively train new employees. It can be very resourceful and profitable for government offices as it reduces the amount of time to train. Employees can even use digital signage to watch informative training videos and take quizzes and exams. It can be just as effective in preparing employees for their positions.